Course overview

Trade mark disputes can arise quickly and unexpectedly - objections, oppositions, and challenges are part of the registration landscape. This focused training course offers a clear, practical guide to understanding how trade mark disputes arise, what they look like at different stages of the process, and how you can respond effectively.

Participants will explore the key phases of a trade mark dispute, including pre-action considerations, hearings and appeals. The training course will also cover the possible outcomes and how they're determined, and remedies available, while offering practical strategies for reducing risk and avoiding disputes in the first place.

Whether you're managing your own trade marks or advising clients, the expert speaker will give you a practical, accessible overview of the dispute process and the confidence to navigate proceedings with clarity and control.
