Overview

Business leaders and managers regularly speak at client meetings, team briefings, project presentations, and external conferences. In fact, anywhere you engage verbally with colleagues or clients can be considered a 'speech' in as much as what you say and how you say it creates an impact and impression. The objective in all cases should be to engage, inspire and influence the audience.

However, for most people speaking to any audience is both challenging and daunting. Get it right and they are uplifted and motivated, with the key take-away messages clearly delivered. Get it wrong and they leave deflated and confused.

The ability to deliver a successful presentation involves three key elements: Content, Delivery and Connection (with the audience).

In this fun and interactive session, Dr David Bryon will provide an overview of each of these three elements, plus look at strategies and techniques that professional presenters, speakers, politicians & even comedians use to write and prepare material. He will also show some video examples that demonstrate some of these elements and help inspire audiences.
